CAPITAL OVER 350,000 DOLLARS. AND CONSTANTLY INCREASING. The Charter of this Company offers more favorable advantages to the farmer and others, than any Company chartered in the State, by insuring with or without a premium note. If the applicant prefer, he can pay the full amount of the premium in each, or by effecting a cash insurance for two years, the insured saves one-eighth of the amount he would otherwise have to pay; or by becoming a member, and giving a small premium note, the insured saves nearly one-half of the amount charged by Stock Companies, when insuring from year to year. This is the advantage resulting from the combination of the

CASH AND MUTUAL PRINCIPLE. This Company commenced issuing Policies against loss or damage by fire, on the 13th day of seven hundred persons have insured and become members of the Company, and over seventy thousand dollars have been paid for losses. Having increased our business during the past year, we feel grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering prospeats of future usefulness. The Directors hope and believe, that, by prudence, caution, and a rigid system of economy, they will establish for this Company a reputation for cheapness and safety acter and value, received and for sale by not surpassed by any Company in the U. THE LATE ECLIPSE .- In a letter from Professor Bache, Superintendent of the Coast Survey, published in Silliman's Journal for September, we find an account of Lieut. Gillis's expedition to the western coast of the United States, for the Coast Survey, to observe the late eclinse.

"The sun there arose eclipsed, and the moisture of the air was so great at the time that they were obliged frequently to wipe away the dew from the object-glasses of their telescopes. At the moment of totality, beads of golden and ruby colored light flashed almost entirely around the moon, not constant even for a second at one point, fitfully flashing, as reflection from rippled water, and as mutable in the respective piaces of the colors. This headthread broke up suddenly, when, for the first time, preturbances were noticed beyond the followin the form of a flattened cone or pyramid of cumulous cloud, about one minute in height with the precepts of the good and great who by two minutes broad at the base. The have preceded them in the field,-whose cloud was not a uniform mass, but apparent | names have become watchwords with those eral tint was a rosy pink, with occasional of integrity-shall each let fall the arm, ly an aggregation of small ones; and its genspots and edges of yellowish white light, as which, in the devotion of his heart and mind though sunlight shone obliquely through them. This was an extremely beautiful sight, and occupied Mr. Gilliss so intently that he lost the best of the chronometer. It was then so dark that he could not see the second-dial on the gold chronometer without a lantern. On looking back to the telescope he saw on the moon's black disk colors of the spectrum flashing in intersecting circles with equal diameer with that body, and each apparently revolving towards the lunar centre. The moving colors were not visible beyond the moon. but a halo of virgin white light encircled it, which uniformly was traceable more than a semi-diameter beyond the black outline. This corong was composed of radical beams or streamers, having slightly darker or fainter interstices rather than a disk of regularly diminishing or suffusing light; but the gorgeous appearance of the spectrum-circles, with their incessantly changing bands of crimson, violet, yellow and green, were thoroughly startling. These colors continued visible for at least ten seconds. The breadth of each spectrum-circle was by estimation, about two minutes. The green colors were not darker than pea-green. These strange colors vanished with the first appearance of light." INTELLECT versus MONEY. The ever-welcome Gazette, on the 6th instant, had on its usually genial face an article copied from the Baltimore American, headed "AMERICAN ARISTOCRACY," which, accustomed as we are to the elevated teachings of our daily visitor, we could only conclude was allowed the space which from long usage belonged of right to more ennobling thoughts, for the purpose of eliciting a reply from some friend of truth. Let me essay the task:

In this nineteenth century, with all the lights of religion and history blazing upon the truth that Intellect and Principle are the great levers which operate successfully in all human associations, is the proof to be uplifted that would strike from our altars the lovely images of Purity, Integrity, Intellect and "whatsoever things are lovely and of good report," and in their stead place crowned statues of unworthy passions? Shall the fiend robe himself in garments of light, and at the very hearth-stone, where, with prayers and tears, we have endeavored to train our little ones for usefulness and honor here, and happiness hereafter, rend from their tender minds those helps which every christian mother plants with so willing and anxious a hand? These, your mother's teachings, are but nursery tales, and idle lullabys! Laugh at them, and as you grow older, be bold and bad if you please, so that you gather those yellow toys which are now denied you for your good, and you shall be loved and honored and happy? Shall our maidens, innocent and guileless as they have grown to womanhood, surrounded by all the sweet influences by which, in every age, woman has maintained her wonderous power over society, and stimulated the strong arm of man to strike one vigorous blow after another in science, art, literature and all that elevates our race,-shall these be robbed of the halo which surrounds them. and in place of their delicate garlands of dewy fragrance shall the destroyer decorate them with the foul weeds of artifice, misanthropy and guile, -bidding them plunge into the filthy pool, upon which they have looked with fear and a prayer for deliverance,for there alone they shall find respectability ing limb of the moon. The largest one was and influence? And our sons, as they advance to the battle of life, their minds stored who aspire to the all-conquering to the cause of justice and humanity he has uplifted, and feel all the lofty aspirations of his soul wither, as he is reminded that all the virtues which may crown a man with glory and honor, are outshone by the glare of the metallic charms that glitter on the person of some half idiotic or besotted son of Plutus? And oh! Sacred Fame of National Honor and Patriotism,-where the giants of statesmanship have raised their voices in tones which have reached the ear of remotest civilization,-thy walls, too, must be invaded and thy devotees named by a name which is the odium of the brute creation. But is there even an appearance of truth in the argument of the article referred to? If gold is, even to the vilest and most sordid of men, "the one grand object of human idolatry," why do such, involuntarily and often unconsciously, yield their poor but best homage to some great mind or ennobled nature. which never owned or sought to claim more of this world's goods than was absolutely necessary to physical existence? and why is it that we feel an unconquerable aversiona kind of abhorrent pity, for the man or woman who is so unhappily circumstanced as to have inherited, with much of worldly store, a mind incapable of lofty sympathies, and a
